“ Jack and I worked together for a few years. In that short amount of time, we developed an appreciation for one another. We couldn't be more different and yet we discovered that we had so many things in common. He taught me so much in just a few days in the course of this life. We made time each day to spend 15 minutes talking in the morning and we stayed a little later each day just to share stories about catching catfish, working on cars, searching for ginger, growing gardens, boats, family and retirement. He envisioned settling into the foothills of Carolina when the time he retired. I got a phone call from him one day and we just talked about everything. At the end of the conversation, he told me that I was his friend. I wasn't sure what to make of it, but I knew that it meant something. A few days later, I received another call from one of our other coworkers and he told me that Jack was gone. Everyday since, not a day goes by where I don't reference the things that Jack taught me. Whether it's changing a car tire or jug fishing up at Nickajack Lake. His spirit lives on in his teachings as I share that same knowledge with my son. Jack taught us so much in this life. More than anything, he taught us to look past our differences and find the common good. We miss him so much. May he rest in peace. Gary L. Rudolph - Chattanooga, TN
