“ If you wanted to start a business, Kathy was the woman you wanted by your side. She worked in so many industries over the years, and no matter what the company, her abilities and work ethic always made her rise to the top. Her later years were spent in Baxter being Nini to a house full of kids, but my most blessed times with her were in Nashville when we were doing big things with Fortune 500 companies and raising our kids together. Life without you already has a big hole in it, Kathy.
